SHERIFF DRAKE'S FOOT BETTER.

The many friends of Sheriff Drake will be pleased to learn that he is improving with his broken ankle. He is now able to walk with crutches. The sheriff received this painful wound about six weeks ago when his foot slipped while he was riding on the running board of an automobile and it was run over by the hind wheel of the machine.

CRIMINAL COURT THIS MONTH.

Two important criminal cases are on docket, along with many other minor cases to be tried this term of criminal court which convenes here Monday morning for a one week term. John Williams, colored, will be tried for his life charged with breaking into the home of Captain J. W. Wofford. The Carlson case will probably be called. C. A. Carlson, the defendant, is now out on bond, somewhere in New Jersey.

Some women always mean what they don't say.

Could you properly refer to the children of fighting couples as "war babies?"

It is quite natural that a chicken-hearted man should find himself henpecked at home.

The average man thinks that if the devil is ever caught he'll turn out to be a woman in disguise.

You can't be too careful how you treat them. For instance, a woman with corns should be handled with husking gloves.

There is a lot of unconscious humor concealed in the explanations of a baseball manager as to why his club failed to make good.

Men are full of human nature, too. Just as soon as one of 'em starts to playing golf he imagines that everybody else in the world is evidently interested in the game.

INKLINGS AND THINKINGS

President of the New York School of Fine Art says that "a fat woman who wears red commits a crime." To think that those old-fashioned red flannel ones should be denounced as criminals!

Also, continues this authority, "a person who wears orange would enjoy living under the elevated." Why not? "Would be safer for that person than would be living in Tipperary."

SEVEN STATES PUT SALOONS OUT FRIDAY MIDNIGHT.

Prohibition Becomes Effective at Last Stroke of Clock on New Year's Eve; Nineteen States on List Jan. 1.

Due largely to the winning fight of the Anti-Saloon League state-wide prohibition became effective in seven states with the coming of the new year. They are Colorado, Iowa, Washington, Oregon, Idaho, Arkansas and South Carolina. When Virginia closes its saloons on November 1, 1916, 13 states will have joined the dry column. Nebraska, California, Michigan, South Dakota, Vermont and the territory of Alaska will vote on Prohibition this year and several other states are expected to ballot on the question. Ohio may vote again in 1916.

The seven states which boarded the water car Friday midnight add a population of 8,254,043 to the dry ranks, according to the 1910 census.

Many Bars to Close in Colorado.

Colorado's turning to the dries is the greatest blow of the year to the saloons sixteen hundred dramshops and eleven breweries were put out of business in that state and liquor can be obtained only four ounces at a time, on a non-refillable prescription of a physician and liquor advertisements may not appear in Colorado newspapers at all.

The remaining 438 saloons, and 16 breweries, in Iowa closed because of the repeal of the malt law by the legislature a year ago. The breweries which go out of business are capitalized at $4,236,963.

Drastic Law in Arkansas.

In Arkansas 136 saloons go out of business under the most stringent prohibition law in the United States. Under local option elections all except six of the 75 counties have been dry for some months. The new law provides one year in the penitentiary for violations, and clubs are prohibited from serving drinks to members. Idaho's 200 saloons closed under the "dram tight" prohibition law. An attack on the law is now before the United States Supreme court on appeal.

Police were called in many counties in South Carolina to aid in handling the crowds which stormed dispensaries before their closing. After the first each citizen has the right to receive one gallon of whiskey or beer a month.

GOOD ROADS

IMPROVE ROADS BY DRAINAGE

One of the Most Important Matters to Be Considered in Construction of Public Highways.

(By E. L. GATES, Illinois.)

When it comes to building roads there are a good many problems to solve and not easy ones at that. Riding along in an auto it is easy enough to say when you strike a smooth stretch, "this is fine," and turn on a little more gas, but when you hit a mudhole and ruts you may get your foot on the wrong pedal and the road commission catches it.

It takes labor, time, good material and money to have good roads. Everyone wants the roads, so we will all have to work and spend some of our time and money and boost for better roads.

One of the things most needed is better drainage for the roads as well as for the farms and at this time we will confine this article to the subject of drainage.

Drainage is the most important matter to be considered in the construction of roads. Drainage, alone will often change a bad road into a good one while the best stone road may be destroyed from a lack of proper drainage.

There are three systems of drainage that we can use to advantage, and these are underdrainage, side ditches and surface drainage.

Where water stands on a road underdrainage without any grading is better than grading without underdrainage. Underdrainage is not to remove simply the surface water but its greatest help is to lower the water level in the soil.

The action of the sun and wind will finally dry the surface of the road but if the foundation is wet and soft the wheels will wear ruts and these get filled with water during the first rains and the road becomes a sticky mass.

An undrained soil is a poor foundation upon which to build roads as well as anything else. When frost is leaving the ground the thawing is quite as much from the bottom as from the top. If underdrainage is provided the water is immediately removed.

The best and cheapest method to secure underdrainage is to lay a line of farm drain tile on one or both sides of the road. The new road law gives the highway commissioners power to contract with adjoining property owners to lay larger tile than is necessary to drain the road and to permit the contracting parties to drain their lands. This helps the roads and at the same time is a great benefit to the adjoining land.

Side ditches are necessary to all roads but no road can be maintained with the ditch holding the water until it evaporates. In most cases it is cheaper to get the water away from the road than to try to lift the road out of it.

Sometimes roads on the hillsides are left without side ditches. This is a mistake, for if any road needs a ditch it is the one on a hillside, for where there are no ditches the water runs along the middle of the road and wears gullies and as we all know, makes a bad road.

The roads should be so crowned that water can reach the tile or ditches. If all ruts and mudholes are filled, the water will have a better chance to run off. There are several machines made to keep the roads in shape and these need to be used often and at the right time. It is not necessary to spend half a day in trying to get hold of a road commissioner to help open a culvert or let the water out of a hole in the road. Better spend the time in doing it yourself and you will feel better and your neighbor will thank you.

Arteries of Community.

Improved public roads are directly related to better country homes and schools, to the reach and influence of country churches, to the timely market centers. They are the arteries of organized community life.—Home and Fireside.

Road Drags for Upkeep.

The road drag is not an equipment for constructing roads, but it is intended for upkeep. It should not move any large quantity of earth, but takes a small amount of wet earth to or away from the center of the road. It is important to remember that the road drag does not build roads, but helps to keep them in repair.

Using Taxpayers' Money.

There is no better way to use the taxpayers' money than by draining our roads.

NO CHRISTMAS ARRESTS.

Hendersonville may congratulate itself on a clean slate in police circles for the Christmas holidays. No arrests were made for any offence whatever, the prison doors standing open (figuratively) the whole of the real holiday season. The police authorities are to be congratulated on the excellent way in which things were looked after at that time, and all the people should rejoice over the splendid record made.

Harbors on the Adriatic.

The principal gulfs of the Adriatic are those of Manfredonia on the west, Venice and Trieste on the north, and Quarnero on the northeast. There are numerous and admirable bay harbors extending from Fiume and culminating in the wonderful landlocked harbor, the Bocche di Cattaro. The Strait of Otranto, where Italy approaches nearest to the Balkan mainland, is 45 miles wide. Here is the magnificent Albanian harbor, Avlona.
